Excerpt: . . . whose co-operation in the work of instructing the blind is so desirable, can take the higher course in the State seminary, . while the institutions for the blind are always open for the student of pedagogy. From this account we may see how thoroughly abreast of the times is the training of the public school teacher in Vienna. May we not hope to see the day soon in this country when no teacher can be said to be fully equipped for his duties until he has made himself familiar with the methods of instructing the blind, not only for its own sake, but also for the light it may shed upon the training of boys and girls in the common schools of our land ELMER S. HOSMER. THE BLIND BABY. STEP by step in the progress of the education of the blind has the school age been lowered, until the kindergartens--some of which receive children at five years old, and possibly even younger---have reached the limit at which it seems practicable for school training to begin. So far, so good! but the best in this direction has not yet been reached, and will not be attained until the special education of the blind child begins at the date of his blindness. Mothers have their share of the work to do. It is for them to lay the foundation upon which the teachers are to build. If the foundation is lacking, the building falls to...
